Comment: We, in New York State, have a real opportunity to make the right choices for a better future for our state and our planet. It is time to consider an investment in renewable energy. Toxic emissions must be controlled, and wind, solar and other sources of clean energy must strongly be considered as our primary means of power. Dirty coal is not the answer and should not be considered until an economical means of capture can be developed. Nuclear energy is far too expensive. The Marcellus Shale may be a viable location for future natural gas drilling, but not before a full study is made as to how it can be extracted without negatively impacting our water supply and our wildlife. Our future is in your hands. Thank you for considering my comments and I hope you will decide in favor of a green, clean economy.
