

Name: David Hochfelder

Title: Assistant Professor

Organization: University at Albany

County: Albany

Comment: The draft plan contains nothing about the possibility of peak oil. Global oil production has likely peaked and is on a long plateau, headed into a decline, at the same time that global demand is rising. This will likely result in a combination of higher transportation and food costs and negative impacts on economic growth. The draft plan should take peak oil into consideration, at least as a contingency to be planned for.